Dear Colonel White:

It has indeed been a great pleasure working in your organization since December 30, 1947, but there is something I feel I should speak very frankly about.

When I filed my application for the CIA in November 1946, on the suggestion of certain friends, I really had no idea that I was going to be assigned work in connection with the wire services, where I now am. The technical requirements of this work being of such an entirely different nature than any I have ever done, I feel that I am putting a handicap on myself and I would like very much to transfer to some unit where my best experience would be more of an asset.

It will be noted from my application file that I have had a great deal of administrative experience both in private business and in the Army. I likewise have some knowledge of military intelligence though I have not been an officer in military intelligence for some years.

I would appreciate very much any disposition you make of this request for transfer.

Kindest personal regards, I am

Yours sincerely,
